Indeed, Miss Provence, April Benayoum, who finished first runner-up, was the target of attacks in the form of anti-Semist tweets, sparking outrage from the political class. This year, the ceremony marks the centenary of beauty contests in France.

The runner up, Miss Provence, April Benayoum, had evoked on social networks the origin of her father, who is Israeli, thus unleashing a miss hatred towards the Jewish origin of her father.-----

"I myself have quite varied origins: my mother is Serbian-Croatian, and my father Israeli-Italian", explained the young student in her portrait, broadcast at the beginning of the program, describing himself as "passionate about geography and the discovery of other cultures ". Several associations fighting against anti-Semitism and many political figures have given their support, Saturday 19 and Sunday 20 December, to April Benayoum, the first runner-up of Miss France 2021. Some hateful messages advocate the Holocaust or relay conspiracy theories, and call for a boycott of his candidacy because of his Israeli ancestry. To date, Twitter has not spoken out and has not erased anti-Semitic tweets.
